Rob Kistenberg is a practicing prosthetist with experience in all levels of upper and lower limb amputation rehabilitation. He attained national certification as a prosthetist in 1992. The majority of his career as a certified prosthetist has been spent teaching future prosthetists, occupational and physical therapists at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Over his career, he has worked in clinical practice settings including an upper extremity specialty clinic, private practice as well as working poor/indigent clinics. Rob founded Prosthetic Hope International, a U.S. Based non-profit organization committed to providing rehabilitation care for people who need prosthetic and orthotic services.

Rob received his bachelor's degree in biology from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill and a master's degree in public health from the UT Houston Health Science Center. Rob is currently pursuing a PhD in cognitive psychology at the Georgia Institute of Technology.
